INTRODUCTION

The First Census - 1790

The first United States Federal census was taken as the result of the Constitution, Article I, section 2, which states:

Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of the years in such manner as they shall be law.

With this provision the United States became the first country to have, by law, a periodic enumeration of its inhabitants. The Constitution did not provide for information beyond statistical data for each state.

Fortunately, the act which specifically called for a census enumeration went further. This act was approved March 3, 1790, during the second session of the First Congress. It required that a marshal be appointed for each State, who was authorized to appoint as many assistants as necessary. By this act the marshals were not only required to enumerate the number of inhabitants within each district but to distinguish the free population from the slave population, and to exclude Indians not taxed. This was sufficient information to meet the Constitutional requirements, but the act also required a distinction between sex, free persons of color, free males of 16 years and upward, and most importantly the names of the heads of each family.

The task of taking the enumeration was to begin on the first Monday in August 1790 and close within nine months, at which time the marshals were to make their returns. To avoid the problems that arise from making an accurate count of a mobile population the act stated that each individual was to be enumerated in the home of "his usual place of abode," on the first Monday in August 1790. In the case of persons having no settled place of residence the act stated that they should be listed in the division where they happened to be on the first day of August.

The act also stipulated that "each and every person more than 16 years of age, whether the head of a family or not, (was) to render a true account, to the best of his knowledge, of every person belonging to the family in which he usually resided, if so required by the assistant of his division, under penalty of forfeiting $20."

Difficulty immediately came to the fore with the passage of this act. America was on the fringe of a vast wilderness and the great majority of the population lived in rural areas. Consequently, the assistants had to travel over long distances with few roads and bridges, in forests, swamps, etc. to make an accurate return. Often the population did not cooperate. Many people "manned some scheme for increasing taxation, and were inclined to be cautious lest they should reveal too much of their own affairs." There was opposition on religious

The first United States Federal census was taken as the result of the Constitution, Article I, section 2 which states:

Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of the years, in such manner as they shall be law direct.

With this provision the United States became the first country to have, by law, a periodic enumeration of its inhabitants. The Constitution did not provide for information beyond statistical data for each state.

Fortunately, the act which specifically called for a census enumeration went further. This act was approved 1 Mar 1790 during the second session of the First Congress.¹ It required that a marshal be appointed for each State, who was empowered to appoint as many assistants as necessary. By this act the Marshals were not only required to enumerate the number of inhabitants within each district but to distinguish the free population from the slave population, and to exclude Indians not taxed. This was sufficient information to meet the Constitutional requirements, but the act also required a distinction between sex, free persons of color, free males of 16 years and upward, and most importantly the names of the heads of each family.²

The task of taking the enumeration was to begin on the first Monday in August 1790 and close within nine months, at which time the marshals were to make their returns. To avoid the problems that arise from making an accurate count of a mobile population the act stated that each individual was to be enumerated in the home of "his usual place of abode"³ on the first Monday in August 1790. In the case of persons having no settled place of residence the act stated that they should be listed in the division where they happened to be on the first day of August.

The act also stipulated that "each and every person more than 16 years of age, whether the head of a family or not, [was] to render a true account, to the best of his knowledge, of every person belonging to the family in which he usually resided, if so required by the assistant of his division, under penalty of forfeiting $20."⁴

Difficulty immediately came to the fore with the passage of this act. America was on the fringes of a vast wilderness and the great majority of the population lived in rural areas. Consequently, the assistants had to travel over long distances with few roads and bridges, in forests, swamps, etc. to make an accurate return. Often the population did not cooperate. Many people "imagined some scheme for increasing taxation, and were inclined to be cautious lest they should reveal too much of their own affairs."⁵ There was opposition on religious

The accompanying data contains five items of information. First, all names are listed alphabetically by surname. Standard abbreviations have been used for the titles of Ensign (Ens.), Lieutenant (Lt.), Major (Maj.), Sergeant (Sgt.), Corporal (Corp.), and Captain (Capt.). All references to Junior and Senior were standardized to Jr. and Sr., respectively. The second item of information is the date of the census record expressed as year, month, and day. In those instances where the record provided only the year, the month and day fields are represented by zeros (ie. 1669-00-00). The town or location of each individual at the time of the census is the third piece of data.

The fourth item is biographical information that describes the event and the purpose of the census. For example, the first two alphabetical characters are abbreviations for the following:

Q# Church Member
 CS= Church Seat
 DE= Death
 ED= Estate Value at Death
 EV= Estate Valuation
 FL= Fence List
 FN= Freeman
 FS= First Settler
 HH= Household Head
 HV= Household Member
 HS= Household Size
 LC= Land Grant
 LI= Livestock Owner
 LO= Land Owner
 MI= Migration - In
 MO= Migration - Out
 MR= Minister's Rate
 PN= Petitioner
 TR= Taxable Rate

The next three numeric characters quantifies an individual's possessions (EV and IO), rates (MR and TR), and household size (HS). All numbers after EV refer to the value of the person's estate in the English monetary term of pounds; whereas, all numbers after MR and TR designate shillings owed. The number after IO signifies the amount of acreage owned. The figure following HS specifies the number of inhabitants in that household.

Fifth, and in the last column, is the source reference. The first 6 characters are a key field using author surname letters and decade of publication or recording of record to enable identification of the source in the bibliography section. Finally, the digits following the colon refer to the page number of the specified document.

Accordingly, the format is as follows:

Name	Date of Census	Town	Biographical Information	Source Reference

NORTH CAROLINA AT THE BEGINNING OF 1800

Showing Approximate County Divisions within Present State Boundaries.

Map by
L. Polk Denmark

County boundaries in 1810 were essentially the same as in map of 1800 shown here, except that in 1808 Columbus County was formed from the southern part of Bladen and the northern part of Brunswick, and in the same year Haywood County was erected from the western part of Buncombe. (Map taken from The Formation of North Carolina Counties, 1663-1953, by David Leroy Corbit, Raleigh, 1950.)

men who took the census.

— Oath No. 4 Interlined with the words “As far as practicable.” But it was impossible to comply with the strict letter of the Law! and he who takes the oath in that way must have met with fewer difficulties than I or he does not reflect upon its bearing. I believe I have acted with the Spirit of the Act. . . .

— I am to have two dollars for each copy of this Schedule and the paper alone is worth more than that sum! . . .

— My work is Roughly done but I hope it is sufficiently plain to be understood. I am sure I have earned more than I shall get. . . .³

Another assistant marshal submitted an expense account which included cost for a number of gallons of brandy!

The only names that appear in the 1820 schedules are of heads of families or of persons who were not enumerated within a family or household unit. A statistical distribution is given for members of each family by race (including a distinction between free and slave blacks), sex, and age group. Beside the name of each head of a family certain statistical information is recorded in the vertical columns running from left to right across a schedule. The first eleven columns record the age-group distribution of white males (under 10, 10-15, 16-18, 16-25, 26-44, and 45 and over) and of white females (under 10, 10-15, 16-25, 26-44, and 45 and over). The 12th column gives the number of foreigners not naturalized; the 13th, 14th, and 15th columns show occupational classification (agriculture, commerce, and manufactures). The 16th to 19th, 20th to 23rd, 24th to 27th, and 28th to 31st columns furnish, respectively, the age-group distribution of male slaves, female slaves, free male blacks and free female blacks (under 14, 14-25, 26-44, and 45 and over). The 32nd column, which is the last, is headed “All other persons except Indians not taxed.”⁴

I wish to thank the North Carolina Archives for their previously written permission pertaining to the use of the North Carolina map, and to Mark Bradley Miller and Deborah Nixon Peercy for their help in the final computerized data processing for this book.

Similar Counties that may be confusing is Montgomery and Monroe, Orange and Orleans, Sar. may be Saratoga though I don't find it on the map I have. Also Chemung and Chenango could be interchanged in this list.

Following will be a list of counties and the Fitches in them.

The following table shows the results of the experiments conducted on the various samples of the material under investigation. The data are presented in a tabular form for clarity and ease of comparison. The first column represents the sample number, and the subsequent columns represent the various parameters measured during the experiments. The results are summarized in the following table:
